for Cheltenham clients

Who Should Attend:

If you are running or are starting a business in Cheltenham and have less than 250 employees

Gloucestershire Enterprise supports established businesses with its team of nationally accredited Business Advisers who have significant private sector experience working with businesses of different sizes and from a range of business sectors.

Establishing your own business is just the start of your journey and juggling all of the aspects, roles and responsibilities can sometimes seem a daunting prospect. We can provide advice, support and guidance to ensure that you continue to head in the right direction.

With any small business, there are always lots of issues to be dealt with and very little time to spend on them. This is where we can help. Come and spend an hour with our Business Adviser and we will help with whatever you wish to discuss through a business review meeting. You'll leave with clear actions to follow up and can book further meetings to suit your needs.

Having a business review meeting helps you to develop an action plan and a more strategic approach to your business, and we also work with many clients over longer periods, either on a specific project or as an ongoing mentor. We also have access to other trusted professionals who offer their consultancy services on specific issues at preferential rates to ensure you receive the best possible affordable advice.

Steve Jordan

Leader of Cheltenham Borough Council

We want Cheltenham businesses to grow and prosper through providing them with access to good quality advice and support that will help them make the right business decisions in these challenging economic times. In making the initial 1 hour appointments free, we want this service to be as widely accessible as possible.

Kevin Holt,

Managing Director of Gloucestershire Enterprise Ltd

Business support services have rarely been in such high demand as they are right now. High rates of unemployment and increasing redundancies, coupled with fewer jobs available and more young people out of work than ever before, has seen many people taking control of their life and starting their own enterprise. Existing businesses are feeling the pinch too, with many simply looking for some practical information, advice or training to help them navigate the tough times. The services commissioned by CBC will help a lot of Cheltenham-based people and we look forward to working with them.
